Three Healthy Pet Treat Recipes

Create chops-kicking treats for dogs and cats to reward them with preservative-free goodness and spend less on buying store brands.

We love our pets — and our pets love treats. Whether you use little morsels of deliciousness to train your dog or cat, to let them know they've been good or to express how much you love them, a treat is usually greeted with delight. But are you indulging them with something that's actually good to eat?

Most commercial pet-treat brands manufacture products to high standards of safety and nutrition. Store treats often stay on store shelves and then at home for weeks. Many, by necessity, include artificial preservatives (as well as artificial colors and flavors). And pets, just like humans, are better off keeping those ingredients out of their system.

Fortunately, you can create healthy treats in your own kitchen — and you needn't be a professional chef. The following recipes are all simple, quick to make and use easy-to-find ingredients. Because none use preservatives, they will only stay fresh for a week.

It is designed to fit on a pocket camera tripod. Most cameras used only the camera lens and are unable to shoot multiple pictures simultaneously. Some cameras are smaller than the Pocket Camera. These cameras were very popular among amateur astronomers until the advent of digital photography began. Photochromos make good high-speed pictures because the focus of the lens is directly on the photographic object. Also, they can produce some very realistic images with low image noise, and this has made many people happy. Photochromos are easily mounted to any telescope and the pictures are easy to see. They produce images of stars and planets that are more lifelike and have larger natural bokeh with a wider field of view, which helps create detailed and detailed imagery. 44ad931eb4 O Kadhal Kanmani Full Movie 720p Download
